Law Practice

Alon Eizenman is an associate practising in the Municipal and Land Use Group of Stikeman Elliott's Toronto office. His practice focuses on a variety of municipal and planning matters for residential, commercial, industrial, and institutional clients throughout Ontario. His practice also encompasses infrastructure and property-development matters, and he is experienced in freedom of information and lobbying-related matters. He has represented clients before the Ontario Municipal Board and other administrative tribunals.

In the course of his practice, Mr. Eizenman regularly:

- prepares and submits development approval applications and manages the development approval process;
- drafts development agreements (such as Site Plan Agreements and Section 37 Agreements); and
- strategizes and manages teams of development approval professionals (e.g. architects, land-use planners, engineers, etc.).
